PRESIDENT'S CORNER

by Tommy Joe Reynolds

Dear Cousins:

We hope you've been healthy and well and that you've made some progress on your Reynolds family history efforts. For about the past year we've been hosting online meet-ups once each month called "RFA Chats". These are held the first Sunday afternoon of most months. We'll include a link to our next session in this newsletter. Hope to see you at one of these informal meetups soon.

Your President,
Tommy Reynolds, Line 46

WANTED

REYNOLDS MALE FOR YDNA TEST

Some Reynolds history hunters are looking for other collaborator-cousins to share traditional research and test YDNA hypotheses.

One Reynolds ancestor that remains a bit of a mystery is the William Reynolds that married Martha Cole in Culpeper Co., VA, and left a will naming over a dozen children in Pittsylvania Co., VA, in 1791. While strong evidence exists connecting William as the son of John Reynolds—whose will was proven in Culpeper Co. in Aug 1784.

Another Reynolds ancestor that we'd like a YDNA signature for is the Henry Reynolds that was born circa 1757 and lived on Camp Creek in Greene County, TN, in the early 1780s. He died there in before January 1835, when his will was proven naming wife Charity and children: Henry, Patsey, David, Sally, Ellander, William, Joseph, and Richard. Henry was the recipient of pension S4079 for Rev War service and is DAR patriot A095719. He had at least two wives (Catherine Skiles and Charity McNew).

We'd like to uncover the YDNA signatures of these groups of Reynoldses and to collaborate on further research. If you are connected to this Reynolds line, please be in touch with

RFA Chat

RFA President Tommy Joe Reynolds

What?

Reynolds Family Association "RFA Chats" are monthly no-agenda sessions that provide an opportunity for RFA members and others with interest to meet up virtually and share Reynolds family history research topics and ask questions about RFA, Reynolds lines, and related topics. If we have a large turn-out, we can create breakout groups that participants can join to discuss specific Reynolds lineages or specific geographic areas.

A TRIBUTE TO!

Mary Frances "Debbie" Reynolds

(April 1, 1932 – December 28, 2016)

Copied from Wikipedia

Debbie in 1987

Music career and cabaret

Her recording of the song "Tammy" (1957; from Tammy and the Bachelor) earned her a gold record. It was a number one single on the Billboard pop charts in 1957. In the movie (the first of the Tammy film series), she co-starred with Leslie Nielsen.

Reynolds also scored two other top-25 Billboard hits with "A Very Special Love" (number 20 in January 1958) and "Am I That Easy to Forget" (number 25 in March 1960)—a pop-music version of a country-music hit made famous by Carl Belew (in 1959), Skeeter Davis (in 1960), and several years later by singer Engelbert Humperdinck.

She released The Best of Debbie Reynolds album in 1991.

For 10 years, she headlined for about three months a year in Las Vegas's Riviera Hotel. She enjoyed live shows, though that type of performing "was extremely strenuous," she said in 1966:

With a performing schedule of two shows a night, seven nights a week, it's probably the toughest kind of show business, but in my opinion, the most rewarding. I like the feeling of being able to change stage bits and business when I want. You can't do that in motion pictures or TV.

As part of her nightclub act, Reynolds was noted for doing impressions of celebrities such as Eva and Zsa Zsa Gabor, Mae West, Barbra Streisand, Phyllis Diller, and Bette Davis. Her impersonation of Davis was inspired following their co-starring roles in the 1956 film, The Catered Affair.^[27] Reynolds had started doing stage impersonations as a teenager; her impersonation of Betty Hutton was performed as a singing number during the Miss Burbank contest in 1948.

Her 1992 holiday collaboration with Donald O'Connor, Christmas with Donald and Debbie, arranged and conducted by Angelo DiPippo, would be her final album release.

Reynolds was also a French horn player. Gene Kelly, reflecting on Reynolds's sudden fame, recalled, "There were times when Debbie was more interested in playing the French horn somewhere in the San Fernando Valley or attending a Girl Scout meeting....She didn't realize she was a movie star all of a sudden."

Stage work

With limited film and television opportunities coming her way, Reynolds accepted an opportunity to make her Broadway debut. She starred in the 1973 revival of Irene, a musical first produced 60 years before. When asked why she waited so long to appear in a Broadway play, she explained:

Primarily because I had two children growing up, I could make movies and recordings and plays in nearby Las Vegas and handle a television series without being away from them. Now, they are well on the way to being adults. Also, there was the matter of being offered a show that I felt might be right for me ... I felt that Irene was it and now was the time.

Reynolds and her daughter Carrie both made their Broadway debuts in the play. Per reports, the production broke records for the highest weekly gross of any musical. For that production, she received a Tony nomination. Reynolds also starred in the Broadway revue Debbie in 1976. She toured with Harve Presnell in Annie Get Your Gun, then wrapped up the Broadway run of Woman of the Year in 1983, while Fisher was appearing in Agnes of God. In the late 1980s, Reynolds repeated her role as Molly Brown in the stage version of The Unsinkable Molly Brown, first opposite Presnell (repeating his original Broadway and movie role) and later with Ron Raines.

- Best Foot Forward (1953) (Dallas State Fair)
- Irene (1973) (Broadway and US national tour)
- Debbie (1976) (Broadway)
- Annie Get Your Gun (1977) (San Francisco and Los Angeles)
- Woman of the Year (1982) (Broadway) (replacement for Lauren Bacall)
- The Unsinkable Molly Brown (1989) (US national tour)
- Irene (2008) Perth Western Australia

In 2010, she appeared in her own West End show Debbie Reynolds: Alive and Fabulous.

Film history preservation

Reynolds amassed a large collection of movie memorabilia, beginning with items from the landmark 1970 Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer auction, and she displayed them, first in a museum at her Las Vegas hotel and casino during the 1990s and later in a museum close to the Kodak Theatre in Los Angeles.

The museum was to relocate to be the centerpiece of the Belle Island Village tourist attraction in the resort city of Pigeon Forge, Tennessee, but the developer went bankrupt. The museum filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy in June 2009. The most valuable asset of the museum was Reynolds' collection. Todd Fisher, Reynolds' son, announced that his mother was "heartbroken" to have to auction off the collection. It was valued at $10.79 million in the bankruptcy filing. Los Angeles auction firm Profiles in History was given the responsibility of conducting a series of auctions. Among the "more than 3500 costumes, 20,000 photographs, and thousands of movie posters, costume sketches, and props" included in the sales were Charlie Chaplin's bowler hat and Marilyn Monroe's white "subway dress," whose skirt is lifted up by the breeze from a passing subway train in the film The Seven Year Itch (1955). The dress sold for $4.6 million in 2011; the final auction was held in May 2014.

Business ventures

In 1979, Reynolds opened her own dance studio in North Hollywood. In 1983, she released an exercise video, Do It Debbie's Way! She purchased the Clarion Hotel and Casino, a hotel and casino in Las Vegas, in 1992. She renamed it the Debbie Reynolds Hollywood Hotel but it was not a success and Reynolds was forced to declare bankruptcy in 1997. In June 2010, she replaced Ivana Trump on the Globe weekly's advice column but many of the published letters were plagiarized from Slate's Dear Prudence and possibly others.

Advocacy

Reynolds was a longtime ally of the LGBT community and an early advocate for AIDS. In 1983, Reynolds performed at an AIDS fundraiser with her friend Shirley MacLaine. In a 2014 interview with The Daily Telegraph, Reynolds revealed that she had helped several closeted actors conceal their homosexuality by dating them. When asked when she realized she was a gay icon, Reynolds replied, "Over the years many of the boys that have worked for me as dancers have been gay. The creative people were all gay people, from producers to writers. To me, they were just family."

Marriages and later life

Reynolds was married three times. Her first marriage was to singer and actor Eddie Fisher in 1955. They became the parents of Carrie Fisher and Todd Fisher. The couple divorced in 1959 when it was revealed shortly after the death of Elizabeth Taylor's husband Mike Todd that Fisher had been having an affair with her; Taylor and Reynolds were good friends at the time. The Eddie Fisher – Elizabeth Taylor affair was a great public scandal, which led to the cancellation of Eddie Fisher's television show.

In 2011, Reynolds was on The Oprah Winfrey Show just weeks before Elizabeth Taylor's death. She explained that Taylor and she happened to be traveling at the same time on the ocean liner (RMS Queen Elizabeth) some time in the 1960s when they reconciled. Reynolds sent a note to Taylor's room, and Taylor sent a note in reply asking to have dinner with Reynolds and end their feud. As Reynolds described it, "we had a wonderful evening with a lot of laughs." In 1972, she noted the bright side of the divorce and her remarriage:

Now in retrospect, though it was not my will, I think it probably was the best thing that ever happened to me. He did give me two great children and for that I will ever be grateful. Our door is always open to him. I believe in peaceful coexistence and being friends with the father of your children.

Reynolds' second marriage, to millionaire businessman Harry Karl, lasted from 1960 to 1973. For a period during the 1960s, she stopped working at the studio on Friday afternoons to attend Girl Scout meetings, since she was the leader of the Girl Scout Troop of which her 13-year-old daughter Carrie and her stepdaughter Tina Karl, also 13, were members. Reynolds later found herself in financial difficulty because of Karl's gambling and bad investments.

Reynolds' third marriage was to real estate developer Richard Hamlett from 1984 to 1996.

In 2011, Reynolds stepped down after 56 years of involvement in The Thelians, a charitable organization devoted to children and adults with mental-health issues.

Reynolds was hospitalized in October 2012 at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles due to an adverse reaction to medication. She canceled appearances and concert engagements for the next three months.

She published the autobiographies Debbie: My Life in 1988 and Unsinkable: A Memoir in 2013.

Death and legacy

On December 23, 2016, Reynolds's daughter, actress and writer Carrie Fisher, suffered a medical emergency on a transatlantic flight from London to Los Angeles, and died on December 27, at the age of 60 at Ronald Reagan UCLA Medical Center. The following day, December 28, Reynolds was taken by ambulance to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles, after suffering a "severe stroke," according to her son. Later that afternoon, Reynolds was pronounced dead in the hospital; she was 84 years old. On January 9, 2017, her cause of death was determined to be an intracerebral hemorrhage, with hypertension a contributing factor.

Todd Fisher later said that Reynolds had been seriously affected by her daughter's death, and that her grief partially contributed to her stroke, noting that his mother had stated, "I want to be with Carrie," shortly before she died. During an interview for the December 30, 2016, airing of the ABC-TV program 20/20, Todd Fisher elaborated on this, saying that his mother had joined his sister in death because Reynolds "didn't want to leave Carrie and did not want her to be alone." He added, "she didn't die of a broken heart" as some news reports had implied, but rather "just left to be with Carrie."

Reynolds was entombed with a portion of her daughter's ashes at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Hollywood Hills during a memorial service held on January 6, while the remainder of Carrie Fisher's ashes are held in a giant, novelty Prozac pill.

WILLIAM AND ESTHER GARDNER REYNOLDS

William Reynolds was a descendant of James and Deborah of Rhode Island (line 14): James to Joseph to Joseph to Joseph to George to Joseph and Experience David's all of Rhode Island. William was the fourth son of Joseph and Experience Reynolds born in 1777 in Stephentown, NY.

On a beautiful morning of the first of September, 1800, the family set out for Ohio with one small wagon and three horses (according the 1874 autobiography of William's older brother, The autobiography of Elder Matthew Gardner: a minister in the Christian Church sixty-three years, pp. 10-11):

The country we had never seen. The route was new, and to us unknown until we approached it. There was then little communication with the wilderness west. Not only railroads and steam-boats, but even turnpikes, were unknown . . . The mountains were difficult to climb, the streams were dangerous to ford, the undertaking was hazardous, and the journey was long. The weather was pleasant, and the journey as prosperous as we could expect. We reached Pittsburg, on the Ohio River, by the first of October, just one month from the time of starting. Pittsburg was a small village. We waited two weeks before we found a boat going down the river. Then we embarked on a flat-boat — the boats then used — with four other families; furniture, wagons, horses, and all, crowded on one small flat-boat. The river was low: the progress was slow: sometimes have floated rapidly and sometimes we were long aground. We were nearly four weeks coming down to Limestone — a little village on the Kentucky side of the river. It had but few houses then. Limestone is now called Maysville. Here, Henry Hughs, a land-trader, came to the boat to sell us land in Ohio. Father went with him to see it. He liked it, and traded him two horses for one hundred acres. We then proceeded on with the boat down the river, about twelve miles, till we came opposite our land, at a landing two miles below where Ripley now stands. There we disembarked, and the boat and its other passengers went on down the river. There was no town then where Ripley now stands. We landed within a few miles of our land, and soon reached our future home, where every things seemed new and strange . . . My father rented a little cabin to move into, While he and my two older brothers built a cabin on our own land. It was now about the last of November — the most pleasant and delightful Autumn I have ever known before or since. This fine weather continued till after Christmas. So my father and brothers having completed our new house, we moved into it about the first of January, 1801. The fine weather continued that year all winter, there being no weather to prevent out-door work.

Steve Roth's wonderful compilation "A genealogy of James and Deborah Reynolds of North Kingstown, Rhode Island, and descendants" (now online at HathiTrust) made an argument that the wife of William Reynolds was Esther (sometimes spelled Ester) who was believed to be the daughter of Benjamin Gardner (Volume 1, p. 625) and his first wife:

"(1) The oldest child of William and Esther Reynolds, born in 1799 in Rensselaer County, New York, was named Gardner (it was the practice in those days to give a child the mother's maiden name);

(2) The Gardner (or Gardiner) family lived in Exeter, Rhode Island, moved to Albany (now Rensselaer)

County, New York in about 1770, where he served in that state's militia during the Revolutionary War as did William's grandfather's family;

(3) Benjamin Gardner, born c 1760, moved to Albany (now Rensselaer) County, New York, in about 1770, where he served in that state's militia during the American Revolution. William's father, Joseph Reynolds, also migrated from Exeter, Rhode Island, to Albany County, New York, during the same time frame; and

(4) In 1800, Benjamin Gardner moved his family to Adams (now Brown) County, Ohio, settling but only a few miles from William's father, who had also migrated to Ohio in 1800. The evidence suggests that Esther may have been a Gardner; perhaps a daughter, or even a younger sister or niece of Benjamin Gardner."

To the above I would add that Reynolds researchers Marshall Sellman (a former history professor) and Jan Stevenson looked at the same evidence in the 1980s and came to the same conclusion that Esther was most likely Benjamin Gardner's daughter. William and Esther had nine children.

During the War of 1812, he served in Captain Abraham Shepherd's Company of Ohio Militia as a drummer boy; his father William Sr. was a Sergeant in the same unit (Roth, p. 626). William served two tours (2 September to 2 October 1812, and again 29 July to 22 August 1813).

In 1834, he and his family moved west, first to Illinois before settling in Mosquito Creek, Muscatine, Iowa Territory by 1837. He died there in September of the next year.

William and Esther are buried at the Klein Cemetery there. The cemetery record for Esther, who is buried with William, has her listed as "Esther G. Reynolds" probably indicating that her maiden name began with a G (as her middle name was reportedly Ruth).

ARTICLES NEEDED

Once again I'm asking our members to please send me any Reynolds Family related articles or news stories that may be of interest to our members that I can include in our Newsletter.

I'm also asking each of you to think about the position of Newsletter Editor or even Web Master of our site: <https://reynoldsfamily.org/>.

I'm not giving up, and will continue as long as I can, but I just moved back to Texas and where I'm at now I have a real problem with the Internet, not just the upload speed, but also with it cutting out and back on momentarily, this causes uploads to reset. Last week, it took me 14 hours and 37 minutes to upload a video for one of the sites I maintain. That and the fact that I just celebrated my 80th birthday last week!

If anyone is interested in either the Newsletter Editor or the Web Master, please let's talk!

Looking to improve RFA line 52, Daniel Reynolds b. circa 1770 married to Susanna Butler. He is closely related to Benjamin Reynolds b. circa 1776 married to Grisella Beardsley (not Barclay). All were in early Chittenden, Vermont. I have numerous autosomal matches to both lines and also ydna matches to both lines. How are they related and who are their parents??

Thank you for any clues

I am seeking any additional information on the Reynolds Family Line #24 (Katherine Reynolds & Edward Starbuck). I have looked at the page associated with that family line and it matches the research/sources I had found along with the question on if Katherine was a Reynolds and if Shuah is their daughter.

My line of descent is:

A) Edward Stabuck (1603-16900) & Catherine Reynolds (1603-1690)

B) James Hear (1631-1675) & Shuah Starbuc 1640-1729)

C) John Heard (1667-173) & Jane Cole (1677-1735)

D) Moes Hubbard (1700-1757) & Abigail Heard (1702-1768)

E) John Head Hubbard (1725-17911) & Hannah Neal (1727-1767)

F) Heard Hubbad (1760-1826) & Ruth Allen (1769-1845)

G) Walter Watson (181-88) & Ruth Allen Hubbard (18809-1880)
