THE FOUNDERS OF OUR AMERICAN FAMILY

THE FOUNDERS OF OUR AMERICAN FAMILY

THIS genealogy is an account † of JOHN AND SARAH (BACKUS) REYNOLDS and their ‡ descendants. Their history is associated with the early southern Connecticut towns of Saybrook, Lyme and Norwich. We do not know anything of John prior to 1659, but it seems probable that he was born in England, between 1615 and 1635, rather than in America after 1630.

In the lists § of Reynolds immigrants of this period we find:

JOHN REYNOLDS, aged 23, sailed from Gravesend, England, April 3, 1635, for St. Christophers in the Paul of London; and, seven weeks later:

JOHN REYNOLDS, aged 20, and THOMAS REYNOLDS, aged 18, sailed May 21, 1635, for St. Christophers in the Matthew of London.

We have been puzzled by the mention of an || Elizabeth Reynolds, of whom we know nothing else, who married Richard Jennings in New London "the beginning of June 1678." Both were immigrants from the Barbados, British West Indies, and had Samuel, b. March 11, 1679; Richard, b. 1680; and Elinor, who m. Richard Manwaring. There is some likelihood that John came to America by way of St. Christopher's Island ("St. Kitts") in the British West Indies.

There were so many Johns among the early Reynoldses ¶ of New England that little, however, can be argued from such disconnected fragments of evidence. At this time there were a John ¶ Reynolds, wife Naomi Latimer, in Wethersfield, Conn. Another John ††, wife Anne Holbrook, lived in Stonington, Conn. A third John ††† lived in Greenwich-Stamford, Conn., and another in Portsmouth, N. H. Another John Reynolds, evidently an §§ apprentice in Hartford, in 1646 was fined for helping to harbor escaped prisoners. One narrative of John of Norwich relates that he came from England in 1635 and settled at Saybrook. The date in this assertion is probably an unsupported inference from the records in Hotten's "Immigrants," just cited.

John Reynolds early lived in that part of Saybrook † on the east side of the Connecticut River which is now called Lyme. On December 3, 1659, John sold his house and land in Lyme to Wolston Brockway, and with other Saybrook settlers went up to found Norwich. Their places in Lyme were filled mostly by a later generation.

By trade John Reynolds of Norwich was a wheelwright, and he lived in Norwich, probably working at his trade, some forty-two years. It was this John Reynolds of Norwich who with Simon Huntington, Thomas Adgate, John Post and William Backus in October, 1663, was made a Freeman at Hartford, the seat of the colonial government.

Saybrook is about half-way between New London and New Haven, and on the southern Connecticut coast on the western side of the Connecticut River where it empties into Long Island Sound. Lyme is on the eastern bank of the river at this point. Norwich is a very beautiful bit of hill and river scenery at the head of the River Thames, fourteen miles above New London, where the Yantic and the Shetucket rivers flow into the Thames. Its population is above 20,000.

Saybrook § was settled 1635-36 by John Winthrop, Jr., who built the fort and commenced a "plantation," or as we should call it now a town-ship. In 1638 during the anxious days of the Pequot War, it was a military base. In 1639 it was re-named Saybrook in honor of Lord Say and Seele, the King's Commissioner in a boundary dispute between Connecticut and Rhode Island. Until 1644 it was still in the main a military post. In 1647, in which year the fort burned, Captain John Mason, famous commander in the Pequot War, came from Windsor to take command; and in 1646 the Reverend James Fitch, later of Norwich, became minister. There are no Saybrook records existing prior to 1660. At the town meeting of 1656 were Richard Edgerton, Thomas Adgate, John Post, Thomas Tracy, and others, though no one of the name of Reynolds. Backus, Bliss, Leffingwell, Huntington and Olmstead, all Saybrook inhabitants of long standing, were with Reynolds in the migration to Norwich, 1659-1660.

On May 20, 1659, the inhabitants of Saybrook were given permission to found Norwich. The Mohegan Indian Chief Uncas and his brother Wawequaw for sums of £20 and £70 gave deeds on June 6 and August 15, 1659, to the thirty-five negotiators, and the town of Norwich was settled in the spring of 1660.

Norwich Township consisted of a tract of wild land nine miles square, in the heart of the Mohegan territory, at the head of the Thames, then known as the Mohegan or Pequot River. This area included the present townships of Bozrah, Franklin, Lisbon, Sprague and the western border of Griswold and Preston, embracing Jewett City, Long Society and a part of Poquetanock. The Indians were friendly, but the settlers complained † of the great number of crows and blackbirds that preyed upon their crops.

Norwich was undoubtedly named for Norwich in Old England, and most likely because some of the settlers originally came from there. Norwich is in County Norfolk on the eastern coast of England, about one hundred miles north by northeast of London. This supports our inclination to the belief that many of the early Reynoldses of New England came from Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex counties of England.

The "Proprietors," or founders, of Norwich, nearly all of whom came from Saybrook, were the following:

§Collis P. Huntington, the late railway magnate, was of these Huntingtons. See the large Huntington Family Memoir.

We mention these names because descendants of most of them married Reynoldses in Norwich. More detailed account of the descendants of many of them is given in Mary E. Perkins' Old Houses of Norwich and in F. M. Caulkins' History of Norwich.

When Norwich was settled in the spring of 1660, John was assigned land next to his "kinsman," Ensign Thomas Leffingwell, in the southeastern part of Norwich. There are several varying descriptions of his land which we quote:

JOHN REYNOLDS: Southeast of Thomas Bliss, six acres, bounded South by the highway to the old landing-place; i. e., Mill Lane; bounded by the River on the North.

This was then the eastern frontier of the town plot. A dense and miry thicket lay between Mill Lane and the upland plain.

Another † description reads:

JOHN REYNOLDS: Four and a quarter acres abutting east on the highway to the Landing-place; abutting North on the highway to Great Plain; West on the land of Lieut. Thomas Leffingwell; Southeast on the way to the Mill, with an addition on the south of Six Acres adjacent, abutting south on the land of William Hyde, and Southeast on the highway to the Mill.

The third record runs:

JOHN REYNOLDS: Six acres and ten acres in the first division of land—sixteen acres in all of meadow and upland, abutting on the Town Street, and on the way to the Mill 68 rods, 'being a crooked line'; abutting South on land of Samuel Hyde 52 rods; abutting West on land of Thomas Leffingwell 31 rods and the northwest a crooked line being in length ten rods; then abutting north on the highway 36 rods.

The home-lot was laid out in November, 1659; the first division of town lands was in April, 1661. The highway to the Great Plain is the little land between the Reynolds and Bliss properties, which crossing the river at the ford joins the Great Plain path, near the residence of the late Hezekiah Rudd. This was ordered in 1663 to be a pent highway, and so remained as late as 1793.

Some of the farm lands seems to have been on the west side of the River. A Mr. Greene of North Kingstown, R. I., bought some of this land in 1828 for the water-power company. The land known years ago as Lewis' farm had been owned by the Reynolds family from 1659 to 1815.

The following general description supplies a graphic idea of the appearance of the first Norwich homes:

"The early houses covered a large area, but they were seldom thoroughly finished, and the upper rooms of course were cold and comfortable * * *. The old houses were generally square, heavy buildings, with stone chimneys that occupied a large space in the center. The posts and rafters were of great size and solidity, and in the rooms heavy beams stood out from the ceiling overhead, and projected like a low, narrow bench around the sides.

"The floors were made of stout plank, with a trap-door leading to the cellar. The line of shelves in the kitchen, called the dresser, often displaying a superb row of burnished pewter, performed the office of side-board and closet. The best apartment was used for the sleeping room, and even the kitchen was often furnished with a bed. The ceilings were low, and the fire-place, running deep into the chimney, gaped like an open cavern. But when the heaped up logs presented a front of glowing coals and upward rushing flame, when storms were raging without, or the heavy snows obliterated the landscape, such a fountain of warmth not only quickened the blood, but cheered the heart, inspired gratitude, and promoted social festivity."

The very old house described in Chapter V of Mary Perkins' Old Houses of Ye Antient Towne of Norwich, and said to have been built by the first John Reynolds, has always been, and still is, in the possession of direct descendants. It is now (1928) owned by Mrs. Gardiner Greene, who, with her brother, Albert Lewis Reynolds, occupies it. They are children of the late Henry Lee Reynolds. The ownership has descended through John¹; Joseph²; John³; Joseph⁴; Abigail⁵; Abigail's husband Giles l'Hommedieu; to Henry Lee Reynolds and to his daughter just mentioned.

This venerable old house is Number 328 Washington Street, Norwich, Conn. It is undoubtedly the oldest existing house built in America by a Reynolds. The only others ranking near it in age are the Joseph Reynolds house† ("Willowmere") in Bristol, R. I.; and the Golden Ridge Homestead in Delaware pictured in our 1920 Reynolds Family Annual. Abigail's husband, who survived her by eight years, at his death in 1859, gave the house and yard-lot to Henry Lee Reynolds, and the adjacent ancient Reynolds land on the south to his brother, Charles Sage Reynolds. About 1892, Charles sold his land to the founders of the Backus Hospital. Until that time the land had been in the Reynolds family without interruption from the time it was granted by Chief Uncas in 1659. The Backus Hospital, next south of the present Reynolds home, is a prominent land-mark in Norwich. The Reynolds house-lot extends back to the Yantic River.

Of the old home, Miss Perkins wrote:

"The house, the frame-work of which it is claimed, is the same that was erected by John Reynolds, the first proprietor, still retains its huge central chimney, and many old-fashioned features, though it has been greatly modernized. When first built, the entrance door was on the south, and by this door still stands the old well. The present street door opens into a hall, which formerly was a room where the pillows and saddles were kept. This was always known as 'the pillion room'."

Mrs. Greene has taken great care to keep the old house in excellent condition and fresh in all its charming colonial atmosphere. There are two floors and the attic. The older part of the house contains nine rooms. As is seen in the pictures published on these pages, three large maples stand about the house and smaller trees between the house and the river. Mrs. Greene and the late Judge Greene have furnished the old home in keeping with its traditions. It has been a charming place of call for the occasional descendants of John of Norwich who have strayed back to the New England town where their family was founded in America. The family portraits in the rooms shown herewith are of members of the Greene family. This home has always belonged to some member of the Reynolds family.

It is unfortunate that we do not know something of the antecedents of John and Sarah. As John, Jr., the first child of whom we have record, was born in August 1655, John Reynolds and Sarah Backus were married, probably in Lyme, around 1650. Sarah was reared in Lyme and was the daughter of the venerable pioneer William † Backus and his first wife. The first three children of John and Sarah Reynolds, and possibly the fourth, were born in Lyme, then an outlying part of Saybrook. The births of eight children are recorded at Norwich, though without mention of John's wife. The Reverend Samuel Reynolds in his manuscript genealogy mentioned a tradition that there were eleven children in all. If so, the others probably died in infancy, for we know the names of but eight.

John and Sarah had been about fifteen years in Norwich when their first son, John, Jr., was murdered by the Indians. Major Palmer ‡ of New London wrote on January 29, 1675-76:

"This morning early came post from Norwich with the sad intelligence of two men and a boy being taken and killed, who went over Shetucket River to spread flax, viz.: JOSIAH ROCKWELL and his boy, and JOHN RENOLDS, Jun.; both of Norwich, and said J. Rockwell and John Renolds, Jr., were found dead and thrown down ye River bank, their scalps cutt off,—the boy is not yet found, and supposed to be caryed away alive."

The Rockwell boy, then aged between 13 and 16, was later—through the aid of a friendly Indian—found alive. John Reynolds was killed § January 28, 1675-76. These two men were killed on the east side of the Shetucket River not far from Norwich. This was about seven months after the outbreak of King Philip's Indian War, and as many months after another nearby JOHN REYNOLDS, || son of James of North Kingstown, R. I., was shot by Indians while passing through a swamp near North Kingstown. This John, Jr., of Norwich was at his death about twenty years old, and so far as we know, unmarried. His brother Joseph, then about fifteen, was the only son of John and Sarah to marry and carry on the family in Norwich.

John Reynolds, Sr., became a Selectman of Norwich in 1669. By trade he was a wheelwright.

In 1690, according to early custom, John deeded to his only living †BACKUS FAMILY. William Backus, Sr.—Little is known of him. Supposed to have been living in Saybrook as early as 1637. In the settlement of the estate of John Charles, who d. Branford, Conn., in 1637, children of William Backus, Jr., received a share of the right of their deceased mother, who was the daughter of John Charles. From this fact it is ascertained that the first wife of William Backus, Jr., was Sarah Charles. Before removing to Norwich, William m. Mrs. Anne Bingham and brought with him to the new settlement, three daughters, two sons and his wife's son, Thomas Bingham. The three young men were of mature age, and the daughters m. John Reynolds, Benjamin Crane and John Bayley. William, Sr., died soon after the settlement of Norwich. His will, dated June 12, 1661, witnessed by Thomas Tracy and John Post, is recorded in New London, endorsed as allowed by the probate court held there June 21, 1665; inventory dated June 1664, among ancient documents at Hartford. Death probably took place soon after signing will. House, land, cows, corn and household goods and tools belonging to the trade of smith or cutler were mentioned. Mrs. Anne Bingham Backus, mother of Thomas Bingham, Sr., d. May 1670. For further account of his descendants, see pp. 157-160 of Caulkins' History of Norwich and the Bingham Genealogy.

‡Trumbull: Connecticut Records II:403.

§Please note that until 1751 when the English Calendar was reformed, all dates between January 1st and March 25th had to be quoted in two consecutive years. This is explained on page 48 of the 1922 Annual; or under "Calendar" in any encyclopedia.

son, Joseph, half of the house and home-lot, and the other half in reversion upon the death of himself and wife. John mentions the pond south of the house, the one drained some years before 1900 and filled up during the laying out of the Backus Hospital grounds, on part of the original Reynolds Estate.

JOHN REYNOLDS, the immigrant, died at Norwich, July 22, 1702, after living there some forty-two years from 1660. On a record dated January 31, 1701-02, he is mentioned as one of the first settlers "now surviving." His will is dated July 15, 1702, seven days before his death. It is printed in full at the end of this chapter. The will mentions as survivors his wife Sarah, only son Joseph, and four married daughters: Mrs. Sarah Post, Mrs. Mary Lathrop, Mrs. Elizabeth Lyman and Mrs. Lydia Miller. His houses and lands, subject only to the widow's right of dower, and his farm implements and wheelwright's tools he bequeathed to his only living son, Joseph, who continued all his life in Norwich. At his death John owned about 79 acres or more in Norwich.

After naming the widow Sarah and son Joseph executors, he adds, "I do make choice of my loving kinsman Ensign Thomas Leffingwell an overseere, to be helpfull to them." Possibly Leffingwell† was a brother-in-law. Forty-two years earlier Leffingwell had been among those who with John removed from Saybrook (Lyme) to Norwich. In the original lay-out of Norwich, Leffingwell's property was next west of John Reynolds'. The first John and his wife and many descendants are probably buried in the old town cemetery in Norwich.

From Antient Houses of Ye Towne of Norwich, pp. 22-30, we quote:

"Many years ago an old manuscript record of the Reynolds Family was found in a Norwich Town attic which says, 'This family name is likely to become extinct in this town as there is not any of this name that will properly keep it up. It may be truly said of the most of those that descended from the first John that they have been smart, active, sensible men and women for a period of one hundred and forty-eight years; the few relatives which now remain will in a short time be off the stage and the name will be forgotten, as there is not at this time—1808—a man of the name living here.'

"Henry and Charles, however, received the old Reynolds house from their Uncle Giles l'Hommedieu in 1859,‡ and the family continues in Norwich."

The family is now (1928) represented in Norwich by Mrs. Gardiner Greene, Albert Lewis Reynolds, Mrs. William H. Palmer, and the children and grandchildren of the deceased uncle, Charles Sage Reynolds.

The eight known children of JOHN AND SARAH (BACKUS) REYNOLDS of Norwich, Conn., were:

1. JOHN, Jr., b. August 1655, Lyme, Conn. He was killed and scalped, as just related, by Indians near Norwich January 28-29, 1675-76. It is not recorded that he was married, but a Mrs. Sarah Reynolds m. Joseph Sill at Lyme, February 12, 1677. It is doubtful whether she was widow of the youthful John, especially as we are inclined to believe that there was another branch of the family in Lyme, perhaps children of a brother of our JOHN, Sr. See an account of David and Eliphalet of Lyme, pp 37-38 of the 1923 Reynolds Family Annual.

†THOMAS LEFFINGWELL (Saybrook Records) had: Rachel, b. March 17, 1648; Thomas, b. Aug. 27, 1649; Jonathan, b. Dec. 6, 1650; Joseph, b. Dec. 24, 1652; Mary, b. Dec. 10, 1654; Nathaniel, b. Dec. 11, 1656.

THE SECOND GENERATION

THE SECOND GENERATION

2. SARAH REYNOLDS: (*John*¹) b. Lyme (Saybrook), Conn., November, 1656; died 1703. She m. John Post, Jr., Dec. 24, 1685, Norwich, Conn. He was born at Saybrook April 12, 1657; d. 1690; son of John and Hester (Hyde) Post. See p. 33 of Norwich Vital Records. Their daughter died without issue, and the son died in infancy so that this Reynolds line ends with the children below:

Post:

12. SARAH, b. Dec. 1, 1686; m. Deacon Timothy Backus, Jany. 26, 1708-09; he was b. Oct. 7, 1682; d. Feby. 28, 1762, Canterbury, Conn. He was son of Stephen and Sarah (Spencer) Backus of Norwich. See pp. 7-9, Old Families of Norwich, by M. E. Perkins, 1900.
13. JOHN, b. July 14, 1689; d. July 15, 1690, infancy.

4. JOSEPH REYNOLDS: (*John*¹) b. Norwich, Conn., March —, 1660, or shortly before his father's removal to Norwich; d. there Feby. 1, 1728-29. He m. Miss Sarah Edgerton, Jany. 10, 1688. She was b. April 1667, d. Aug. 14, 1714, daughter of† Richard and Mary (Sylvester) Edgerton, who m. April 7, 1653. Sarah's brother John m. Mary Reynolds (next page). See Norwich Vital Records, p. 35. On Nov. 20, 1717, Joseph and Sarah were of Congregation of Rev. James Fitch. See Edgerton Genealogy on p. 173 of Caulkins' History. In 1714, Joseph Reynolds was licensed by the Selectmen to keep a tavern in Norwich. "To be so licensed then, one must be a man of good repute and possessed of comfortable means." In 1717-18, his wife having died in 1714, he deeds to his son, John, his house and home-lot, "excepting reserving" to himself "ye West Room, ye lodging Room, with ye porch Chamber," etc., "during my natural life," and then makes the wise (but in this case unnecessary) provision "if I do marry again and it shall please God to remove me by death, and leave my wife surviving that she shall have ye free use and benifet and ye west rooms and ye Lodging Room, etc., during ye time of her living in sd house a widow." In 1711-12 he was allowed liberty "to sett the shop, he hath already sett up the frame of, to sett the one halfe of sd shop in the street, and so to continue during the towne's pleasure." This may have been the old house which formerly stood facing the south, close to the street, near the present entrance of the Backus Hospital grounds. In the early years of the country, this was occupied as a dwelling, and about the middle of the century was moved down the lane to a site back of the Reynolds house, where it now remains. It is said to have been used formerly as a shop, but no one remembers the date of its erection, and no record of it has been discovered. All of the persons listed in the rest of the chapters in this book are descendants of the four chil-

THE FOURTH GENERATION

THE FOURTH GENERATION

45. JOHN REYNOLDS: (*John*³; *Joseph*²; *John*¹) b. Norwich, Conn., April 18, 1730. He was killed on Long Island while visiting friends when his horse ran against a tree. Inscription on his gravestone in a burial ground belonging to the Woolsey Family at Dosoris near the village of Glen Cove, L. I.:

"Here lies inter'd the Body of Mr. John Reynolds, b. at Norwich in Connecticut, who died Oct. ye 29th, A.D. 1750, in ye 21st year of his age, Greatly lamented by his acquaintances."

As he was a minor, his mother (and guardian) submitted an inventory of his estate to the Probate Court in Norwich. It amounted to nearly £2000 and included eight books and two pamphlets. He was of Yale University, Class of 1747. See Yale Biogs. and Annals, II: 131-32. Salisbury, Family Hists. & Geneal. I: 289.

46. JOSEPH REYNOLDS: (*John*³; *Joseph*²; *John*¹) b. Norwich, Conn., May 2, 1732; d. Norwich, Dec. 10, 1792, after a brief illness. He was the patriarch of a notable wing of this old family. He m. Miss Phebe Lee of Lyme, March 11, 1755, at Lyme; who was b. 1736; d. Aug. 21, 1818, Norwich, daughter of Elisha and Hepzibah Lee of Lyme. In the Census of 1790, New London Co., Conn., Joseph is reported with two sons over 16; two under 16; wife and four females in his household. Joseph inherited the old Norwich home-lot and house after the death of his mother, and after his death it went to his widow and son Elisha. From Elisha it went to Abigail, then Mrs. Giles l'Hommedieu. With Abigail here lived Phoebe and Sarah, spinsters. After the death of Giles, the property went to his nephews, Charles S. and Henry Lee Reynolds—Charles taking the adjacent land, now the site of the Backus Hospital, and Henry the old family home.

Among the Norwich freemen (voters) 1764-1777, there is only one Reynolds name. Not long after the Revolution, many of the Reynolds family, in common with other New Englanders, began to migrate west in search of new homes. As soldiers in the Revolutionary campaigns many of the younger men had their eyes opened to the possibilities of the upper Hudson River and Mohawk valleys and the frontier in Pennsylvania. Many Norwich people settled in Warwick, Bedford and Huntington in the Wyoming Valley, Penn. Some went to Canaan and Lebanon, Conn., and to Chelsea, Vt. A considerable company went with Colonel Ezekiel Hyde 1799 to Rindan (on the Wyalusing), Penn. Enoch⁵ Reynolds (1776-1833), mentioned below, established the first store there. Other Norwich people went to Ruby, Penn. The Christopher Reynolds killed in the Indian Massacre July 3, 1778, at Wyoming, Penn., was, however, of the Stonington Reynoldses, as shown on page 145 of the 1922 Reynolds Family Annual. We mention these various places of settlement for the aids of searchers for descendants of Reynoldses in this book whom we have been unable to trace further.

The children, all born and reared in Norwich, of Joseph and Phebe (Lee) Reynolds were:

71. RUFUS, b. Feby. 25, 1756; died in 1832. No more known.
72. SARAH, b. March 5, 1758; d. April 13, 1759, in infancy.

from Strong Genealogy, p. 1363, seems doubtful); d. Nov. 19, 1807, daughter of Thomas, Jr., and Sarah (Ayer) Hazen, who were m. Sept. 30, 1714. See Norwich Vital Records p. 250; Caulkins, History of Norwich, pp. 322, 324, etc. Census of 1790 New London Co., Conn., records one son over 16, three females. Gamaliel, Jr., cannot be found ahead of his own family in that Census, though he was then married and had children. Gamaliel, Sr., always lived in Norwich, and his children, of several of whom we have lost all trace, were born there. On Dec. 22, 1762, Gamaliel was ordained in the Baptist Church and baptized. Again on Nov. 8, 1766, he embraced that faith. "Separatists used to hold meetings in a large front kitchen in the old Grover house, led by Gamaliel. He was a stonemason by trade, a man of no education, but of considerable native talent. One of that class of men—keen, witty, observing—famed for humorous sallies and whose apt remarks are treasured up, of which the present day seems to exhibit fewer specimens. He was 81(?) at death. This Bean Hill Norwich church eventually became Universalist." All of his sons except Elisha are found in the Revolutionary War. It is probable Elisha was not then living. Mrs. Ahlstrom believes that Gamaliel the elder also served in the Revolutionary War. However, no record has been found. The children were:

- 101. ELIZABETH, b. Sept. 8, 1750; m. Joseph Grover, March 19, 1771, "both of Norwich," by Richard Hyde, Justice of Peace. See Norwich Vital Records, p. 494. Two known Grover children: Betsy, b. Dec. 13, 1771; Joseph, b. Feby. 8, 1773.

THE FIFTH GENERATION

THE FIFTH GENERATION

80. ABIGAIL REYNOLDS: (Joseph⁴; John³; Joseph²; John¹) b. Norwich, Conn., in the old home still standing there, Feby. 5, 1774; died in 1851, Norwich. She m. Captain Giles l'Hommedieu, May 10, 1795. He was born April 28, 1766, probably in Southampton, Long Island, the son of Sergeant Groves and Esther (Vail) l'Hommedieu of Bridgehampton, L. I. Giles d. in the old Reynolds home in Norwich, 1859, eight years after Abigail. Both are buried in the old Norwich Town Cemetery. Groves l'Hommedieu had nineteen children; was private and sergeant in Colonel Smith's Revolutionary War Regiment, and he signed the "Association" (declaration of loyalty to the Colonial Cause) in 1775. Esther was of Southold, N. Y. Further genealogical notes of the l'Hommedieu family are printed in Refugees of 1776 from Long Island to Connecticut, by Frederick G. Mather, published 1913, p. 450. Giles died only six days after the celebration of the Norwich Bi-Centennial. A beautiful miniature portrait and a silhouette of Abigail, reproduced herewith, are owned by Mrs. Gardiner Greene.

Upon the death at sea, in 1799, of Abigail's mariner brother Elisha, the ancient Reynolds homestead fell to Abigail and Giles. They, with her two spinster sisters, Phebe and Sarah, resided in it over half a century. Since they had no children, Giles at his death, in 1859, left the homestead to Abigail's nephews, Charles Sage Reynolds and Henry Lee Reynolds. Henry's daughter, Mrs. Greene, owns it today.

Abigail kept a remarkable diary which gives a vivid and interesting picture of the mind and life of a maiden of the 1790's and early 1800's. The original diary is now in possession of Mrs. Greene. Two complete verbatim copies were made by the Colonial Dames of Connecticut, one of which rests in the State Library of Connecticut at Hartford. We are indebted to the excellent book Old Houses of Ye Antient Towne of Norwich, by Mary E. Perkins, for the following extracts from it and comments:

"I have seated myself down to contemplate on the vanity of all human enjoyments, to read the book of nature, and behold, the mysteries of Divine Providence. Nature has put on its loveliest charmes and smiles in all its gayest attire and the virder of spring breaths forth ambrosial sweets, whence are these flowers but to please our sight, to captivate our senses, and to teach us admiration for the Power who formed them and to teach us our dissolution."

At the age of 16, Abigail goes to Lyme to visit her relatives, the Elys and the Griswolds, and here she writes,

"A youth of brilliant appearance paid his addresses to me, and this was the first time in my life, that evere I was accosted with the language of love. I heard the sound, but felt not its immotions—my young and bashful heart was quite confused at such an interview—words wanted utterance, nor could I answer him, only with a blush."

She notes that she found him "of a character not pleasant to me," but by the advice of friends gave him "admittance," to visit her after her return home.

"The indifference with which I treated him, prompted him to retaliate, and his visit was delayed after the time appointed. I considered him as beneath my condition and resolved to treat him with no more than common civility. My heart I was sure, was safe from his intrusion. I considered him void of that true dignity which constitutes a man of honor. Very unexpectedly he came to visit me. I pretended not to know him during the whole evening. I treated him as one who had taken lodgings for the night,—poor youth was obliged to make himself known—requested my forgiveness which I granted, after pointing out the impoliteness he had treated me with, and forbade him to visit me more. He rose in the morning before the sun, and left us while we war yet in silent repose, this maneuver put our family upon inquiry."

Another admirer appeared soon, "a young lawyer of distinguished beauty," whom her brother Joseph met in the South. She is soon displeased that he should attempt to make a conquest of her heart, "of the affect of flattery." She writes, "that he could not persuade me to think I was more than mortal," and she soon convinced him that "he carried his compliments too far." The admirer soon "retired to his father's seat in the country," and shortly after this her two sisters "war anocolated for the small-pox," and were absent from home for four weeks. "Overjoyed at their returne," she "inconsiderately flew to meet them. . . . But," she writes, "how just was our imprudence rewarded." In four days after their arrival, she went to Saybrook to visit her relatives, and was there taken ill.

"My secret conjectures ware, that I had the small-pox and I dare not make it known, and was willing to put that dismal idea from me, as it afflicted my mind, and added greatly to my bodily distress—the third night after my illness—my good Mrs. Wood came into my room with a countenance which expressed a great tenderness and concern. She informed me my disorder terminate in the small-pox—she was sure I had every symtom—altho my fears ware great, yet theas words struck me like thunder. The next day, I was conveyed to a hospital—everyone in the hous ware intire strangers to me, and it resembled the abode of savages more than that of civilized people. I was taken like an infant from the shays, and laid in a low bunck, instead of an ornamental dress I was covered with rags. My friend Mary who accompanyd me to this dreary place, left me to the company of a noisy gang who felt not my distress."

She had small-pox very badly, and writes,

"This affliction was subservient to my good. While it disfigured my external form, it was a lesson of vertue to my soule."

Abigail returned to her parents "more a child of pity than of pleasure." "My appearance shocked every beholder." I had not been home than a fortnight, when Alfaret (this is the name she gives to her last admirer), "came to visit me." She says she felt "quite disconcerted at his appearance." He stayed three days, gave her an offer of his hand, and assured her she had his heart, but she considered "his love but momentary and refused to encourage him."

Abigail then continues:

"When he left us, I was placed with an indulgent Father but now his loved voice is no more, but a fortnight after his departure, Heaven was pleased to bereave us of a tender parent. But that God of infinite goodness, who bestows our presents and preserves our lives has an undoubted right to us, and we must acquiesce in all his dealings. I can never forget with what composure he bade adieu to everything mortal—O what an awful scene! Death how frightful is thy appearance. I have not seen but felt its terrors—his illness was from Saturday till Monday noon when (I trust) all his pains were ended. The 10th of December 1794, it is now 2 years since, this bereaving stroke of Providence, and every circumstance is still fresh in my memory."

Then follows a poem on her father's death, and melancholy reflections which ended with another visit to Saybrook at the Lay's, and also at Governor Matthew Griswold's. On her return home she became engaged to Giles l'Hommedieu. She writes:

"In the 22nd year of my age, on the 10th of May, 1795, did I binde myself with the indissoluble tie of marriage to a man of my choice, happy hour never to be forgotten and I hope never to be repented of."

After her marriage, she gives an account of two voyages taken with her husband, who was a sea-captain, in 1808-09 to Virginia, which are extremely interesting. In one part of her Journal, she writes,

"I have retired to my chamber to reflect on the melancholy situation of the times."

Then she proceeds to tell of the small-pox epidemic in Boston, 1792, which raged for two or three months "when all business was stopped and a great part of the people left town, and great numbers were swept away by this shocking disease," which appeared in Philadelphia the following summer, "to which 'tis supposed one-third of the inhabitants fell a sacrifice. Hundreds were buried in a day. Some were well and dead in the course of a few hours. Parents denied children, and children denied parents their assistance—when once they felt they had none to help, the markets were stopped, and those that were left almost perished for want of food. There was no remedy for some time—almost everything was tried, but ineffectual, till they applied cold water and fresh air, which proved very beneficial and relieved many."

The next year small-pox broke out in New Haven, but proved not so mortal as before—"to prevent its proving so fatal, when they first began to feel this disorder which took them with a violent pain in the head and continual puking, the phisicians bled them almost to death to take away the putrifaction which made the disease more favorable."

"For three years last the adjasient towns have been visited with distressing sickness called the canker reck. New York in 1795 had the same violent disease, and Connecticut has been afflicted with a severe dearth, and our fields, trees and wells have suffered from its effects."

All these afflictions, we may suppose, like the small-pox, were also "subservient to good," and so perhaps was the influenza to which the Norwich Weekly Register alludes as having "again made its appearance, more than half the people being now under the operation of it," (1793). Giles and Abigail had no children.

81. ENOCH REYNOLDS: (Joseph⁴; John³; Joseph²; John¹) b. June 7, 1776, Norwich, Conn.; d. about 1833; m. Sally Canfield of Middletown, Conn., 1800. He removed to Luzerne, Pa., and to Washington, D. C., where he lived many years after becoming an officer of the U. S. Treasury. The portraits of Enoch, reproduced in this book, are from old oil paintings. They had six children:

119. HARRIET H., who m. James Corcoran, brother of W. W. Corcoran, the philanthropist founder of the Corcoran Gallery.

120. CAROLINE.

121. JOSEPH.

122. LOUISE, the fiancée of Bulwer, Lord Lytton, the novelist.

123. CORNELIA.

*124. ENOCH LEE, b. about 1824 in Conn.; m. Anne Page Bartley.

82. CHARLES REYNOLDS: (Joseph⁴; John³; Joseph²; John¹) b. Norwich, Conn., Jan. 29, 1780; d. Richmond, Ohio, 1823; buried Painesville, Ohio. He was a lawyer and inventor. He m. Mary Sage, about 1814. She was a descendant of David Sage of Middletown, Conn. They lived in Painesville, Ohio, but he died a comparatively young man, leaving the widow and two small sons.

*126. CHARLES SAGE, b. 1816; d. 1852; m. Helen Downing, 1843.

*127. HENRY LEE, b. 1818; d. 1888; m. 1, Martha Thomas; 2, Mary W. Hill.

103. CAPTAIN GAMALIEL REYNOLDS: (Gamaliel⁴; 2 Josephs; John³) b. Norwich, Conn., May 20, 1754; d. Rochester, N. Y., June 7, 1836; buried beside his wife, Mt. Hope Cemetery, there. Caulkins, History of Norwich, and Perkins, Old Houses of Norwich, say he m. Esther Gates, daughter of Zebediah Gates; but if this is so, it would appear he had no children by her. A son of Abelard, below, in contributing material to the Strong Genealogy, does not mention Esther. As Gamaliel was almost thirty when he m. Mary Smith, April 4, 1784, in Groton, Conn., it is possible Esther was an earlier wife, who died. The records of living descendants make no mention of Esther. Ceremony by Rev. Aaron Kenney, Congregational or Presbyterian. Miss Mary Smith of Groton, was b. May 12, 1757, there; d. Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 29, 1847, aged ninety, the daughter of Nathan and Elizabeth (Dennison) Smith of Groton, who were m. July 1, 1747.

Gamaliel Reynolds

Mary Reynolds

After Gamaliel's death, the widow Mary was allowed an annual pension of $34.11, on her application executed Aug. 6, 1838, while a resident of Rochester, aged 81. Gamaliel had been allowed pension for Revolutionary service in his application executed Sept. 6, 1832, while resident in Springfield Township, Bradford Co., Penn. Between that time and his death (1836) he removed to Rochester to be with his son Abelard. See the Descendants of Rev. Nehemiah Smith, by H. A. Smith, 1889, p. 106.

ENOCH REYNOLDS

SALLY CANFIELD
(Mrs. Enoch Reynolds, No. 81)

Gamaliel seems to have moved about a great deal: Groton, Conn.; Red Hook, Columbia Co., N. Y.; Bradford Co., Pa.; Rochester, etc. When but fourteen he came to Groton as apprentice to learn the saddler's trade, then quite important as travelling was mostly done on horseback. We cannot place him in the 1790 Census—he should have been in Groton or N. Y. State—unless he was the Gamaliel in Norwich, who seems much more likely to have been Gamaliel, Sr.

Revolutionary Soldier. The Connecticut records state:

"Minute man, 7 mos. 7 das. of Groton, Conn., under Lieut. Abel Spicer in Captain Coit's Co., of New London; went to Boston on the Lexington alarm (April 1775). After doing good service under Putnam at the rail fence, many of these men returned and enlisted in the Continental Army. Gamaliel enlisted Eighth Conn. Regt., under Colonel Samuel H. Parsons, served through the entire war, being one of the best musicians in the Army * * * Enlisted May 10, 1775, discharged Dec. 17, 1775, private in Captain Abel Spicer's Tenth Co., of Col. Samuel Parsons' Sixth Regiment. This Company on duty in New London until June 17th, then ordered to Boston, where it took post in General Spencer's Brigade. Regiment reorganized under Colonel Parsons for service in 1776. (See p. 11, 1899 Reynolds Family Annual, and p. 71, No. 136, 1916 Annual.)

The U. S. Pensions records (Claim No. W-24729) read:

"While serving as an apprentice in Groton, Conn., as a drummer in Captain Abel Spicer's Company, Col. Samuel Holden Parsons' Conn. Regiment, received a severe wound of the foot by a piece of falling timber while building winter quarters, returned home after about 9 mos. service. He enlisted again at Norwich, in the fall of 1776; served 5 months as Sergeant in Captain Lothrop's Co., of Norwich, Col. Ely's Regt. of Conn.

"In 1777 (aged about 23) entered as Captain of Marines on a Privateer Ship commanded by Thomas Chester. Was in engagement with a British ship and returned in the fall, having served four or five months.

"In June 1778 he entered as a private on a Letter of Marque ship commanded by Stephen Clay, was taken sick and left at St. Croix (Me.) and in June 1779 returned on a Letter of Marque brig owned by John Brown of Providence."

His pension was $58.00 a year. We know comparatively little of his children† except Albert and Abelard, who was a first settler and one of the prominent early citizens of Rochester, N. Y. Abelard, Eliza, Mary and Fabricius were buried Mt. Hope Cemetery, Rochester, N. Y. The children were:

- *131. ABELARD, b. Oct. 2, 1785, Red Hook, Columbia Co., N. Y.; d. Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 19, 1878, aged 93; m. Lydia Strong, Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 1, 1809. Lived Rochester, N. Y.
- 132. GAMALIEL, b. Jan. 9, 1787; d. Aug. 19, 1801, Windsor, Conn. Pension records of his father say d. Aug. 19, 1801; see Smith Genealogy; Family Bible.
- 133. ELIZA, b. Jan. 19, 1790; d. Oct. 16, 1817; buried Mt. Hope Cemetery, Rochester, N. Y. She m. Ebenezer Brown, July 22, 1813, and lived in Rochester. No further record.
- 134. FABRICIUS, b. Dec. 22, 1793; d. 1869; resided Jacksonville, Fla.
- 135. MARY, b. May 17, 1796; d. 1877; m. Levi Brown, perhaps brother to Ebenezer, just mentioned. No further record.

†Haskell L. Garde, father of Andrew Earl Garde, stated (p. 11, 1899 Reynolds Family Annual) that through his mother, he was descendant of Gamaliel. We have not been able to establish this line.

*136. ALBERT, b. Oct. 24, 1799; d. Lostant, Ill., 1887; m. Hannah J. Butterfield, Oct. 18, 1846.

107. HON. JOHN REYNOLDS: (Gamaliel; 2 Josephs; *John*¹) b. Norwich, Conn., March 16, 1761; d. at his residence in Mentor, Ohio, March 3, 1840, aged 79; buried with his first and second wives in an old cemetery near Little Mountain. The inscription reads:

"In memory of John Reynolds, Esq., a Revolutionary soldier who entered the Army in the year 1776 and continued in the service of his country during the War. He died March 3, 1840."

John m. 1, Miss Mary Morgan, June 1, 1780, Norwich, Conn., who was b. Oct. 22, 1759; d. March 20, 1832, aged 73, at Mentor. John m. 2, Polly —, Sept. 10, 1832, at Mentor, according to record he inscribed in his old Bible; she d. June 1, 1837, aged 63. He also penned in, "Father Morgan m. Jany. 14, 1754, but his wife d. Aug. 15, 1770, aged 53. He m. again Nov. 3, 1771. He was b. Feby. 27, 1732; d. Dec. 1810, aged 78. Had besides Mary, Elisha, b. Oct. 14, 1754; Daniel, b. Sept. 1, 1772; and Patty, b. Sept. 10, 1774."

John Reynolds

John was a soldier in the Revolution and it is a family tradition that he fought at Bunker Hill. Connecticut State records have:

"John Reynolds, musician from Norwich, in Capt. Jedediah Hyde's Co., Col. John Durkee's Fourth Regiment, Conn. Line Troops, formation 1777-81. John enlisted March 9, 1777, for duration of War; promoted Sergeant Jany. 1, 1780. His brother Simeon in same regiment, also as musician; brother Gamaliel served in a Groton Regiment."

The U. S. Bureau of Pensions (Claim S-4762 Rev.) reports officially:

"John Reynolds of Norwich enlisted in the spring of 1776 and served until December 1776 in Captain Joshua Huntington's Company, Col. Samuel Selden's Conn. Regiment. Also, enlisted March 1, 1777, served as Sergeant in Captain Jedediah Hyde's Co., Col. John Durkee's Conn. Regiment and was discharged June 7, 1783. John was allowed pension on his application executed April 16, 1818, while living in Broome, Schoharie Co., N. Y. In 1820 he was aged 59 and referred to his wife Mary aged 60 and a son George aged 16. In Sept. 1820 he removed to Mentor, Ohio, to live with his sons."

From Connecticut in the Revolution (pp. 13, 124, 184, 291, 644) we gather:

"Musician in Fourth Regiment Conn. Line March 7, 1777. His regiment was caught in retreat and panic of Sept. 15th in the Battle of Long Island when New York was abandoned."

His descendants state that John had large, protruding ears, and during this battle a bullet tore a large half-circle from the top of one ear. He was also wounded in the leg.

In the Census of 1790, New London Co., John had two sons under 16, wife and two other females in his household. John and his family removed from Connecticut to Broome Township, Schoharie Co., N. Y.; and from there to Mentor, Ohio, September, 1820, making their way by ox-team. From the birth dates and places of his children, entered in the old family Bible by John himself after 1812, it would appear that he moved about considerably. He was a man of much more than average intelligence; judge in New York State, and filled other offices with credit. The old Bible, purchased by him in New York April 16, 1812, for $5, contains a very complete account of his children and their children. It is now in the possession of Mrs. Anson O. Reynolds, Des Moines, Iowa, who copied its records for inclusion in this book. The Bible records no daughters to John. The two extra females, Census of 1790, in his household, may have been his sisters, or members of his wife's family. Note that he had seven sons. Mentor, formerly in Geauga Co., now in Lake Co., Ohio, is about five miles from the southern shore of Lake Erie. Many descendants live there still, and each year hold a reunion. For this complete account of John we are indebted to Mrs. Wm. McK. Ahlstrom, and Mr. George W. Reynolds of Glen Ridge, N. J.
