Editor's Note- Civil War Soldiers

Some months ago, I spent several days at the National Archives and Records Administration in Washington, DC. While there, I was fortunate enough to have time to review Civil War Pension Records, General Index to Pension Files, and many enlistment records. My apologies for not indicating my sources in the previous Recollections! In reporting the information to the members, it is not feasible to publish all of the records for every Reynolds who served, either Confederate or Union, at one time. The lists reported to date are only partial ones and, as time and space allows, more will be forthcoming. If members want to get a 'jump' on this, they may wish to contact the NARA directly.

Photocopies of case-file contents are currently requested by submitting NATF Form 85 to the National Archives and Records Administration, Attn: NWCTB, 700 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20408-0001. You can request NATF Form 85 by submitting your name and postal address, the form number (NATF Form 85), and the number of forms you require (limit 6 per request) to inquire@nara.gov. Sue

MEMORIALS

Mrs. Lester Reynolds, Jr., passed away 4 Dec 2002, after a long illness. She and her husband were proprietors of Knittens Yarn Shop in South Dartmouth MA, and distributor for the Brothers International Corporation, and various yarn companies. Both she and her husband have appeared at knitting seminars in states from Michigan to Virginia. She was a popular instructor of knitting machines, and designed knitting patterns. Her customers and students came from all over New England. Mrs. Reynolds was 47 years old and left her husband, her son Brent Reynolds, her parents, sister and two brothers. [Her mother Millicent Reynolds has been an active member of RFA for many years. This family descends from RFA Line 19, Election of MA.]

Abram T. Reynolds, of Syracuse NY, died 22 Sep 2002 at the age of 96. His nieces and nephews sent a memorial check in his name to RFA. His niece, Mary Jane Mamed of Syracuse, wrote: "Abram worked in his flowers every day. People walking by admired his flowers and asked questions about them. That made his day. He was sick only about two weeks, didn't want anything or anyone's help, very independent. He and his body were tired and just gave up. I want to thank you for all the notes and letters he has on our family. He made photos with names back to the year 1880 home of Abraham Reynolds. It is great what he did for us. The items have been rewarding to all." Mary Jane Mamed's address is 201 Chaffee Ave., Syracuse NY 13207-2705. Abram, RFA member 2341, joined in 1991. [This family descends from RFA Line 18, Henry of PA.]

YESTERDAY

Elisha P. Reynolds, Sr.

GenForum from Renee Kerr, 2 Sep 2002

reneeekerr@earthlink.net

From Biographical Book of Rock Island County, Illinois. (No date given) Elisha P. Reynolds, Sr., an extensive railroad and bridge contractor, and one of the pioneers of Rock Island, came to this place from Vermont in November 1839. In that early day travelers in this section of country did not have the excellent railroad facilities we now have; indeed, the stagecoach was seen only at few places and at rare intervals. Mr. Reynolds was hardy and determined, and on reaching Chicago set out for Rock Island on foot, walking the entire distance - 150 miles - through the unsettled country. Mr. Reynolds was born in Washington Co., Vt., Feb. 13, 1817. His parents were Elisha and Betsey (Stuart) Reynolds. The former was born in New York, of English descent, and the latter was a native of Massachusetts, of Scotch descent.

The subject of this sketch remained with his parents until he was 21 years old, receiving a good common-school education. After leaving home he worked for three years for $10 per month, but being dissatisfied with the outlook in the East, and the narrow field it afforded for a young man of enterprise, he determined to come to the new and growing West. After his arrival here he found, as all pioneers to a new country do, that much hard muscular work is required to develop a country. For about two years he worked at cutting wood and splitting rails, after which he engaged in burning and selling lime for another two years. Seeing a vast field of fertile land all about him, he determined to try his hand at farming, and accordingly, in 1844, he rented a farm of 640 acres across Rock River. This venture did not prove so successful as he anticipated, and after three years he left the farm and engaged in the brick business and contracting, erecting buildings, etc.

This line of work he successfully followed for seven years, when in 1853, he enlarged his field of operation, taking in the construction of public works. He took at this time the contract for grading five miles of the Rock Island Railroad. In this he employed as many as 50 men at a time. He was especially fitted for this line of work, and which he has since successfully followed, doing some very hard work.

The largest contract he ever took to complete in one year, and in fact one that ranks among the heavy contracts of the country, was the construction of 250 miles of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, furnishing everything except the iron, ties and spikes. The amount he received for this work was $1,500,000. During this time he worked 3,000 men and 1,500 teams. At the present time, however he employs only 300 men. In 1884 he built 250 miles of railroad for the following companies: The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Cedar Rapids & Northern, and Winona, Alma & Northern Railroads. Among his extensive bridge building operations is the building of the railroad bridge over the Mississippi at Minneapolis, and the one in Dubuque, and also the one in Louisiana across the Mississippi, and the one over the Ohio at Cincinnati, the one at Glasgow over the Missouri, and also the one at Plattsmouth over the same river. He has had the contract for and direct charge of building 1,500 miles of railroad, and besides the bridges mentioned above, numerous others over small streams. In 1860 Mr. Reynolds purchased 350 acres of land in Hampton township, this county, which he still owns and upon which he keeps his tenants. Mr. Reynolds was united in marriage with Eliza Young, a native of Vermont, April 17, 1847. To them were born five children, four of whom are still living, - John G., Betsey, Lucy and Benjamin. Mrs. Reynolds died in 1858 and Mr. Reynolds contracted a subsequent marriage with Amanda Ogden Oct. 20, 1860. Mrs. Reynolds is a native of Illinois and the mother of one child, - Elisha P. Of his children, John, Benjamin and Lucy are married. The two former are in company with him under the firm name of E.P. Reynolds & Co., who are engaged in contracting and building railroads in different States and Territories of the Union. Although not a politician, though being a strong Republican in his political views, he has been chosen Mayor of Rock Island for two terms, conducting the affairs of the city in that straightforward, business like way so characteristic of the man. Chronology of The Reynolds

Families of Virginia

29 Aug 2001, Final Report
Part 5

[Thanks to Rod Stucker and his client, whose permission has been granted to RFA to publish this report. The report will run in each issue of Recollections until completed, a major document for descendants of Christopher of Virginia. Only non-Reynolds names are capitalized the first time used. - Lee Taylor]

10 Feb 1637, Seventeenth Century Isle of Wight County, Virginia, by John B. BODDIE, p. 664; The Library of Virginia, Virginia Land Office Patents No. 1, 1623-1643, p.517; Christopher Reynolds listed as a land owner bounding a patent for 350 acres lying behind the Pagan Shore issued to Charles BARCROFT (Doc.#131az, 142b) As indicated above, the Pagan Shore referred to in this land patent appears to refer to that portion of the Pagan River where it is joined by the Cypress Creek tributary in the area of modern day Smithfield Town (Map-Doc.#160). According to the following deeds, Christopher Reynolds, Sr., and his descendants occupied this property for several generations.

26 Aug 1637, Virginia Land Office Patents, Bk. 1, p. 473; Nicholas Reynolds obtained a patent for 1000 acres lying on Lawnes Creek (Doc.#156a) 20 Feb 1638, Virginia Land Office Patents, Bk. 1, p. 676, James City County; Nicholas Reynolds listed as owning a patent which adjoins the 500 acre patent of Thomas STAMP bounding southerly from the head of Lawnes Creek (Doc.#156b) Though no county is listed in the second land patent for Nicholas Reynolds dated 1637, as listed above, Lawnes Creek is located on the border of the Upper Parish in Isle Of Wight County. The Upper Parish was adjacent to the Lower Parish where Christopher Reynolds, Sr., and his descendants resided for several generations.

Notice that according to the 1638 patent, Nicholas Reynolds' land was located next to a 500 acre land patent issued to Thomas STAMP at the head of Lawnes Creek in James City County. This indicates that Nicholas Reynolds' land patents were actually located at the head waters of Lawnes Creek which today is in Surry County and borders Isle of Wight County to the south (Doc.153b). Subject to documentation, the Rennolds-Reynolds Family Roster by Col. Steve F. Tillman lists that a Richard Reynolds, Sr., and his wife, Mary ANDERSON, resided in Surry County. 1638, Early Virginia Immigrants by George Cabell GREER, p. 276; Richard Reynolds was transported to Charles City County by John GEORGE (Doc.#21a) According to the publication entitled Early Virginia Immigrants by George Cabell Greer, who was clerk of the Virginia State Land Office, there were several individuals named Reynolds/Reynolls who were transported to Colonial Virginia as servants in the mid 1600's. The author of this publication appears to have extracted the names of these indentured servants from the land patents and transportation records which were used to issue the original land patents and headrights to the individuals who were responsible for transporting these servants to Virginia. This publication lists these immigrants and indentured servants with the individual who was responsible for their transportation as well as the county to where they were transported. Several were transported to Charles River and Charles City Counties. There were also three Richard Reynolds who were transported to: New Norfolk County in 1637 as listed above; to Charles City County in 1638 as listed here; and to Virginia, no county listed, in 1652. William Reynolds was the only immigrant/indentured servant listed who was transported to Isle of Wight County. He was transported in 1648 by John SEWARD (Doc.#21a). Interestingly, Christopher Reynolds, Sr., the immigrant is not listed among them and only William Reynolds was transported to Isle of Wight County. 1

May 1639, Isle of Wight County Deeds, Bk. A, p.103; Christopher Reynolds sold 100 acre patent in Warrisquack [Warwicke Squeake or Warrosquyoake] Bay to Peter HULL [Hill], Witnesses: John SPACKMAN and John OLIVER (Doc.#131ac, 135b) This appears to have been the same 100 acre tract which Christopher Reynolds, Sr., the immigrant, purchased from Robert SABINE five years earlier as listed above:

21 Dec 1634, Seventeenth Century Isle of Wight County, Virginia, by John B. Boddie, p. 531, Isle of Wight County Deeds, Bk. A, p.103; Christopher Reynolds of Warwickqueak [Warrosquyoake County] obtained 100-acre patent from Robert Sabine of Warrisquick [Warrosquyoake County] Bay, Witnesses: Robert CRAMPORNE and Thomas COARKMAN (as shown in the deed of Wassell WEBLING and George FAWDON from Justinian COOPER and wife) (Doc.#131ac, 135b).

The land purchased from Robert Sabine is the first record of Christopher Reynolds, Sr., obtaining land in Virginia. From the year of Christopher Reynolds, Sr.'s arrival in Virginia in 1622, it was twelve years later in 1634 before he first purchased land. This indicates that Christopher Reynolds, Sr., was probably an indentured servant of Edward Bennett. This also appears to support the theory that Christopher Reynolds, Sr., originally immigrated to Colonial Virginia as an 11-year-old child, who was possibly an orphan, in 1622. 1642, Biographical Dictionary of Early Virginia, 1607-1660: Mr. Reynold listed as undersheriff and mentioned in a deposition in Northampton County (Doc.#191b) This is the first record listing an individual named Reynolds/Reynold in Northampton County.

... 1643, Biographical Dictionary of Early Virginia, 1607-1660; Nicholas Rennells listed as a witness in Surry County. (Doc.#191d) This appears to have been the same Nicholas Reynolds who obtained a land patent in 1637 and 1638 in James City County as listed above:

20 Feb 1638, Virginia Land Office Patents, Bk. 1, p. 676, James City County; Nicholas Reynolds listed as owning a patent, which adjoins the 500-acre patent of Thomas Stamp bounding southerly from the head of Lawnes Creek (Doc.#156b).

Though no county is listed in the first land patent for Nicholas Reynolds dated 1637, as listed above, Lawnes Creek is located on the border of the Upper Parish in Isle Of Wight County. The Upper Parish was adjacent to the Lower Parish where Christopher Reynolds, Sr., and his descendants resided for several generations.

Notice that according to the 1638 patent, Nicholas Reynolds' land was located next to a 500 acre land patent issued to Thomas Stamp at the head of Lawnes Creek in James City County. This indicates that Nicholas Reynolds' land patents were actually located at the head waters of Lawnes Creek, which today is in Surry County and borders Isle of Wight County to the south (Doc.153b).

Subject to documentation, the Rennolds-Reynolds Family Roster by Col. Steve F. Tillman lists that a Richard Reynolds, Sr., and his wife, Mary Anderson, resided in Surry County. The following information, which is listed below, appears to pertain to the descendants of Nicholas Reynolds in Surry County:

30 Jan 1702, Surry County, Virginia Wills & Administrations, Bk. 5, p. 267; Robert Reynolds will lists him about age sixty. Wife named Elizabeth; To grandson Nicholas, the plantation that his son lives on when 21 years of age; To daughter Susannah...; To daughter Elizabeth; To grandson Robert GRIFFIN. Witnesses: John Griffen, Agness Griffin and Henry BAKER. Proved 2 Mar 1702 (Doc.#186a-b). Aside from Nicholas Reynolds, this is the earliest record which we have located so far for a Reynolds listed in Surry County records. These name and residence patterns indicate that James was a descendant of Nicholas Reynolds:

23 Dec 1636, Virginia Land Office, Patent Bk. 1, 1623-1643, p. 408; Nicholas Reynolds obtained a patent for 1000 acres lying at Lawnes Creek S.S. Et. up Lawnes Creeke (Doc.#156). As revealed above, this Nicholas Reynolds inhabited James City County [which became Surry County in 1652] which in Colonial time periods bounded the northern border of Isle of Wight County. James City County was an original shire/county of Virginia which was formed in 1634. In 1652, James City County changed its name to Surry County. According to several genealogical data bases (including the Ancestral File) and Reynolds family histories, there was a Richard Reynolds and his wife, Mary Anderson, who resided in Surry County during the colonial time period. However, no sources of information are listed for these data bases regarding the Richard Reynolds and Mary Anderson of Surry County. Though the county location for the 1636 patent for Nicholas Reynolds was not provided in the original description of the patent, the description does list Lawnes Creek which corresponds with the northern boundary for the Upper Parish in Isle of Wight County as described above.

There was another estate record for Robert Reynolds on 5 Jul 1709 which was signed by Grace Reynolds (Doc.#186b). 21 Mar 1643, Seventeenth Century Isle of Wight County, Virginia, by John B. Boddie, p. 541, Christopher Reynolds assigned 350 acres, on main branch of Bay Creek Called Cypress Swamp, to Arthur SMITH (Doc.#131ad-131ae) Notice that there is no previous record of Christopher Reynolds, Sr., obtaining this 350 acres on Cypress Swamp (which is also known as Cypress Creek on modern maps), a main branch of Bay Creek (which appears to be the same waterway as the Pagan River) prior to his assigning it to Col. Arthur Smith, I. On modern day maps Cypress Creek is situated just outside the Smithfield Town limits. Cypress Creek appears on Isle of Wight County maps as a tributary for the Pagan River which empties into the James River.

The history entitled Seventeenth Century Isle of Wight County, Virginia, by John Bennett Boddie, lists the following on p.541, "Gov. William BERKELEY confirms to Arthur Smith 350 acres on the main branch of Bay Creek [Pagan River?] called Cypress Swamp [part of Cypress Creek], first granted to James ROE by Patent 10 Dec 1640 and by him assigned to Arthur Smith provided said Smith does not plant or seat [seed] for a term of three years, dated 21 Mar 1643." This area of Cypress Swamp was later considered part of Newport Parish where Christopher Reynolds, Sr., and his descendants resided for many generations. Early church records of Isle of Wight County reveal that Newport Parish, where Christopher Reynolds, Sr., and many of his descendants resided for several generations, was originally known as the Lower Parish according to deed and court records. These early parish church records were patterned after the Episcopal Church of England since Virginia was an English Colony prior to the Revolutionary War in 1776. Aside from land ownership regarding deeds and patents, the church and the court were the bodies around which much public life in Colonial Virginia revolved. Isle of

Wight and Nansemond Counties played a significant part in the development of the Virginia Colony. According to the Parish Lines of Southern Virginia, by C. F. COCKE, the Upper and Lower Parishes of Isle of Wight County were created from Warrosquyoake Parish in 1643. In 1734, the Upper Parish was divided with the lower half becoming part of the Lower Parish, also called Newport Parish, and the upper half going to Nottoway Parish which later became part of Southampton County (created from that portion of Isle of Wight County lying west of the Blackwater River) when it was created from Isle of Wight County in 1749. The Upper Parish was dissolved by this division and the Lower Parish, which existed from 1643-1743, was now officially called Newport Parish (Doc.#154a-b). Unfortunately, the records for the Upper Parish, now known as Nottoway Parish in Southampton County, are not complete with current records not beginning until 1748. "Parish vestries usually met twice a year to conduct the business of the Church. A new vestryman was selected to fill a vacancy when there was a designation or a death and two of the Vestryman were designated as Church Wardens each year. Every four years all of the land in each parish was "processioned" and boundaries were either confirmed or established between land owners unless there was a lack of agreement between the two land owners. These "processioners" reports always included the names of the men conducting the "processions" and often include the names of the individual land owners involved and any other persons who were in attendance at this important business undertaking. Another integral part of the business conducted at the vestry meetings was the selection of a minister, the purchase and constant repair of the Glebe and the financial aid give to individual members of the parish." (Doc.#151a) A brief history of the Isle of Wight parishes reveals the following: Warrosquyoake, later Isle of Wight, Parish and the Parishes in the Diocese of Southern Virginia Descended therefrom: Warrosquyoake Parish, circa 1629. The first parish organization in what later became Isle of Wight County is recorded in 1629 as already existing at Warrosquyoake. Copies of the General Court Proceedings show that in 1629 the Commissioners at Warrosquyoake delivered complete records of the monthly court proceedings, together with the register of christenings, marriages, and burials under the hand of the minister and the church wardens, and likewise a copy of their lives and disbursements at Warrosquyoake. When Warrosquyoake was established as a county in 1634 a parish was already in existence. Until March, 1634, Isle of Wight County had but one parish.

[Ed. Note: I have kept all of the peculiarities of spelling, punctuation & grammar as they appeared in the newspaper. I was unable to find any further information on White Reynolds; does anyone know what happened to him?]

Friday, 4 April 1880, pg 3

In Lincoln county last Sunday night Deputies Stockton, Bailey & Whiting undertook to seize a wagon loaded with blockade whiskey & in charge of Jacob Mull & White Reynolds, 2 noted distillers. Reynolds' fired on the party when Deputy Stockton returned the shot, the ball passing through Reynolds' neck. It is feared that he is mortally wounded. Stockton surrendered to the sheriff of Lincoln county but was immediately released.

Friday 23 April 1880, pg 3

White Reynolds the moonshiner who was shot in Lincoln county about 2 weeks ago by W. H. Stockton of the revenue raiding force will not die. He was conveyed to Lincolnton a few days ago & is in a fair way to recover.

Friday, 7 May 1880, pg. 3

Reynolds the man shot by Wm Stockton [the latter well known here] has so far recovered as to be considered out of danger, but says the Charlotte Observer, his physicians think he will never recover entirely from the effects of the wound. His story about the shooting differs very widely from Stockton's: He declares he never fired at all.
